Freiburger Filmforum – Festival of Transcultural Cinema celebrates its 20th edition!

This year the Freiburger Filmforum dares to look ahead and question the familiar in diverse ways. Images of the present will serve as an introduction to the future, as a vivid living space in which one can move in a creative way today. This year’s program showcases artistic works that explore this engagement with potential futures, often conveying a palpable sense of resistance to dystopian realities.

FILMING FUTURES, curated by Emergent Futures Collective, explores ways in which film might provide us with opportunities to intervene, provoke and/or collaborate around imagining and performing new futures. Saul Williams and Anisia Uzeyman’s fantastic musical feature Neptune Frost sets the tone for the series HACKING TIME MINES and includes an afrofuturist visionary San Francisco sci-fi classic Spawn in the Place. Exploring the main section’s contribution, THE FUTURE IN TODAY, highlights of international festivals exploring present-day future scenarios which already unfold in the here-and-now.

Two documentary series travel from Siberia to the Amazon featuring strong social concerns: FAMILY CARES IN FOCUS is a film section that portrays families in times of radical uncertainty and crisis through an intimate lens. VENES OF LIRE: Routes, paths, and trails are the main protagonists of this collection. Films of setting out, wandering, wondering, stagnation, and arrival.

Unusual perspectives and personal approaches characterize the line-up of the STUDENTS’ PLATFORM. Pulsating from over 350 submissions, this section showcases a diverse selection of 16 international debut and student films of all lengths, shot in 14 countries. The program is accompanied by a rich WORKSHOP SERIES on current themes in documentary filmmaking and visual anthropology.

Or as the Freiburger Filmforum itself claims in its 20th edition mission statement: For people. For the future. For a better tomorrow. For the community.

This year’s Freiburer Filmforum celebrates its 20th edition and a panel talk. Join us for 10 days of international film screenings, exciting exchanges, and inspiring film discussions. Parts of the festival program will be LIVE STREAMED from the cinema with the option to participate in the film talks via Zoom.

See you soon in the cinema.
